To Tanners, Distillers, & Farmers.

THE subscriber assignee of JARED OLD'S PATENT IRON MILL for Grinding Bark, Corn and Cobb, &c. for the States of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, informs the public that they are made and kept for sale by Mr. George Sutton who is sole agent in Pittsburgh to sell Mills in those states, their utility in grinding bark is well known and established to be the best in use. To Distillers they answer a valuable purpose to shell corn and grind the cobb, and by distilling the cobb it is found to make a saving of about one fifth of this method.—To Farmers, to grind feed for cattle, the mill will crack nearly all the corn and grind the cobb quite fine—There are now a considerable number of those mills in use for that purpose, and are highly approved of—Distillers and Farmers in the above states are solicited to make trial of them.—I will warrant them to answer the purpose as described.

Orders for mills will be attended to by Mr. George Sutton, where they can only be had in Pittsburgh, and will be by him forwarded.

For the information of the public I give this

NOTICE.

That all mills, sold in the above states by agents of Luther Gale, is an infringement on my right, nor has there any of Gales's mills been sold or used in the western country for grinding bark to my knowledge. Jared Olds' improvement consists of an Iron hopper cast solid on the cylinder or tube and cogs or sharp pointed teeth placed in rows on the inside of the mill. I therefore forbid all persons from making, using or selling mills of the above description in Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, without authority from myself or Calvin Bates and our agents, as all persons found violating said patent, may rest assured that sooner or later they will pay us for our right, if there is law and justice to recover it

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 5, 1818.

The Wanderer,

By EDWARD ENNUI.

No. 3.

"Well, 'tis no matter; honour pricks me on."
FALSTAFF.

Upon looking over my two last numbers I am forcibly reminded of a very sentimental correspondence which I once held with a congenial friend, who used to occupy the first pages of his letters with excuses for not writing sooner, the second with apologies for not writing better, and the third with remonstrances against my want of punctuality. Thus I have detained my readers so long with apologies and explanations, when they have been bursting with impatience to obtain the treasures of the teeming budget, that they are no doubt ready to exclaim with Hamlet's mother, "more matter with less art." Methinks I hear a dulcet voice exclaiming, in accents which Orpheus might have envied, "prythee take the cork out of thy mouth and let me drink thy tidings;"—my dear madam, or miss, be patient; for although, to use a vulgar phrase, "I feel like a cat in a strange garret" I will soon convince you that

"Born to your service I live but to obey;"

and therefore,

——"Since brevity is the soul of wit
And tediousness the limbs and outward flourishes,
I will be brief."

Ichabod Idler, is under consideration. His "oderiferous flowers of rhetoric" must be culled over, and many rejected, before they will form a nosegay of sufficient brilliancy to charm "that formidable personage the public." Cousin Ichabod must combat his "strenuous idleness;" haste is incompatible with correctness, and the execution of a careless hand will mar the design of the most brilliant fancy. There may also be "too much of a good thing." Vir sapit qui pauca loquitur.

For the amusement of to day, I present to my readers, the following sprightly letter from a female correspondent.—Her draft shall be duly honoured.

TO EDWARD ENNUI, Esq.

I declare, Mr. Ennui, I was never more delighted than when I saw your first number, and I congratulate you, in the name of many of my sex upon your appearance among us. It is really delightful to have as a monitor, one who professes to be a gentleman of fashion.—The Spectator, I understand, was a little ugly old gentleman with a short face, who wore a wig, carried a cane, and sported a frightful broad-skirted coat; the Guardian was a stiff iron-sided moralist; and the Rambler a gloomy misanthrope. We do not love, I assure you, to be scolded for our faults by stupid, prosing old fellows, who have not sufficient taste, either to discern our virtues, or discover our attractions; but as you assure us that you are not "old and grey" but still in "the spring of youth," we hope to find in you a friend who will give us credit where we really deserve it, and only blame us—when it cannot well be helped. I must confess, however, that we do not altogether approve of your ideas with regard to matrimony, and that there are some expressions in your second number, which are not dictated by that spirit of gallantry, which we should expect in so accomplished a cavalier. This, however, we are willing to attribute to affectation, or to the influence of fashion, which sometimes teaches gentlemen to consider us as beings of an inferior order—but I won't quarrel with you about that now.

I want you, Mr. Ennui, to give our gentlemen a serious going over, and I'll tell you what about. It is a lamentable fact, that our beaux, instead of being solicitous to please, have become so blind to our attractions, and so careless of our approbation, that one would suppose that they had all forsworn the sex, and taken vows of celebacy You may see them at broad noon, sauntering about the streets, with black cravats, grisly chins, and neglected locks; their whole appearance, in short, indicating that the tooth-brush, the clothes-brush, and the boot-brush, form no part of the equipage of their toilets. However "dauntless" they may be "in war," they are certainly "laggards in love;" and while they do but little to deserve the gratitude of those useful citizens, the barbers and boot catchers, they do still less to promote our pleasure, or their own happiness. Another complaint, which I have to make, applies more particularly to strangers. I have heard a gentleman, who had scarcely been long enough among us to shake the dust from his feet, complain that our city was a "smoky hole," that the ladies were dingy, and the streets filthy; according to these gentlemen, our mountains are diminutive, our rivers sluggish, nay, even our sun does not shine with the same radiance which theirs vouchsafes to beam upon the more fortunate dependants on his bounty.

Now these are points, to which I beg you will "seriously incline" and although they are "pitiful" and "passing strange" yet I trust, that if "Heaven has made you such a man" as you profess to be, you will not allow them to pass unnoticed; and I can assure you, that if success should crown your exertions, all the girls in town will be setting their caps for you. And wishing that you may live a thousand years,——unmarried, I subscribe myself,

Your friend and humble servant
SOPHIA SPARKLE.

Domestic.

UNITED STATES' ARMORY

We have a very interesting account of the U. S. Armory at Springfield. The Salem Register says, "the statement is given at the close of the last year. The establishment was made in 1795, and a table at the end contains a view of it in every year for 23 years.—In that time above 128,000 muskets have been manufactured, and above a third of that number repaired. The whole expense has been about a quarter of a million of dollars. The table gives all expenses in separate columns, so that the true state of the establishment can be easily ascertained. Besides the muskets, have been manufactured 12,000 new carbines in the years 1809—10—The situation is a beautiful one—The establishment contains a brick building 201 feet by 32, of two stories, for the gunsmiths. A brick shop with eleven double forges, of one story, 130 by 52 feet. A brick store with offices, of two stories, 60 by 30 feet; in the 2d story is a chapel. A depository, of two stories, 100 feet by 40. A brick shop, fire proof, 32 by 16 feet, with three furnaces and eight other buildings, besides 17 dwelling houses. To these are to be added a pay office, magazine and blockhouse, and an ordnance yard and lumber yard. The largest building has a cupola and bell.—The water works are one mile south of the buildings, and are called the upper, middle and lower, on a stream that passes into the Connecticut, and they have five work-shops, 28 forges, 10 trip hammers, 18 water wheels, 9 coal houses, 3 stores and 3 dwelling houses. In the upper works, one shop 65 by 32 feet and of 2 stories, of stone and brick, has 3 water wheels. A stone shop 75 by 50 feet, one story, has a trip hammer and ten forges, and the bellows move by water. Another shop of one story is 26 by 18 feet. In the middle works is a stone shop 84 by 45 feet, of one story, which has six water wheels; and adapted to go together or apart, are three trip hammers which can give four hundred blows in a minute. There are 5 forges in this part. A stone shop 50 by 25, of one story, has three water wheels and 5 forges. There are other convenient buildings. At the lower works a shop 55 by 32, of two stories, the lower of hewn stone and the upper of brick. It has three water wheels and 4 forges. There are other convenient buildings here, of which the description gives a clear and instructive account. In the establishment are employed from 140 to 250 workmen, who finish 45 muskets daily The works may be increased at pleasure. We are indebted to the author for the statement, & to the friend that offered it to us, The government of it is worthy of the plan of this work."

MILLEDGEVILLE, Geo. May 5.

Destruction of Chehaw Village.

Mr. Pearre has politely favored us with the following account of the destruction of the Chehaw village. "On the 28th we reached Jimmy's town, a part of the old Chehaw village—and here we were informed of one of the most infamous outrages that ever disgraced the human form. It would even give a darker shade to the blackest deeds of an Algerine pirate. On our near approach to the village, we saw a party of mounted warriors retiring very fast into the swamp, and sent on our pilot a head to inform them we were friends, and would not injure them. He did not succeed in overtaking them, but found another party at the landing who had come in for provisions. When we approached they appeared friendly, but very much alarmed. We inquired for provisions, having none among us, and were told that they had none. They informed us that their town had been attacked and destroyed; that they had only come in to get something to eat. We were struck with astonishment at the fact, but could get no information of the cause, or the authors of this base transaction. All we could learn was, that a party of mounted men had entered their town with a white flag and fired on them, while the hand of friendship was extended to them; that they had killed old Howard with six other men, and three females, an old woman, a girl and a child; that they had burnt all their houses, plundered every thing they could lay their hands on, and made a precipitate retreat. Of the cause they were as ignorant as we were. They expressed no sentiment of hostility, but relied on the justice of our government for reparation, and seemed to think that it would be amicably settled, and here I hope government will not disappoint them. We informed them we were confident government could not have authorised this measure, and that the commanding general was entirely unapprised of it; that general Glascock at the head of the Georgia militia, was in their neighborhood and would afford them protection; and that they might with safety call in their warriors, old men, women and children, which they did.

On our arrival at Fort Early we were informed of the facts. A Mr. Wright who was elected in Savannah to command a company of militia from that place, which afterwards in consequence of his being sick and unable to command, elected the first lieutenant to command the company, who was regularly mustered into service as the captain of that company, and is now in command of the company in the U. States service—he (Wright,) came to Hartford, reported himself captain in the service, assumed the command of some cavalry and infantry ordered out for the protection of the frontier, obtained permission of the governor of this state to burn Phelemie's and Hoponnie's towns, which general Jackson had passed near and permitted to stand, and with this command wished to immortalize his name, (in which I fear he has too fatally succeeded,) went on disregarding orders, permission and instructions—left Phelemie's town to his left on the river—stopt 10 miles short of Hoponnie's, and commenced a most wanton and unprovoked attack on the old men, the women and children of a town, the friendship of whose inhabitants to the people of the U. States had never been doubted since the revolution, and whose warriors, with the exception of a few who were out hunting, followed Jackson to the field to chastise the enemies of our country, who liberally shared in the fatigues and privations of the campaign, and were actually in the service of the United States, when this band, more barbarous than the most savage Indians, were firing on their mothers, their wives and their children, who were remaining at their homes secure in protection from the whites, and participating no solicitude only for the return of their sons, their husbands and their brothers, and anticipating the happiness which that event would bring with it—and while their old chief whose silvery head and tottering limbs, might have begotten pity even in the most savage beast of the forest, and whose services to the country should have procured the good will of all, stood exposed to the fire of a whole battalion with the flag of peace extended, begging for mercy and making the most solemn asseverations of his peaceable intentions, and that he wished no war. Even after he had fallen to his knees, he held the flag extended and begged for mercy—but inhumanity stopped not here. He was again fired at, and after they had murdered him the ornaments were torn from his ears."

NORTHERN EXPEDITION.

"If an open navigation should be discovered across the polar basin, the passage over the pole or close to it, will be one of the most interesting events to science that ever occurred. It will be the first time that ever the problem was practically solved with which the learners of geography are sometimes puzzled—that of going the shortest way between two places lying east and west of each other, by taking a direction of north and south. The passage of the pole will require the undivided attention of the navigator. On approaching this point from which the northern coasts of Europe, Asia and America, and every part of them will bear south of him, nothing can possibly assist him in ascertaining his course, and keeping on the right meridian of his destined place but a correct knowledge of the time, and yet no means of ascertaining that time will be afforded him.—The only time he can have, with any degree of certainty, as long as he remains on or near the pole, must be that of Greenwich, and this he can know only from good chronometers; for from the general hazy state of the atmosphere and particularly about the horizon, and the sameness in the altitude of the sun, at every hour in the four and twenty, he must not expect to obtain an approximation even of the apparent time by observation, and he will have no stars to assist him. All his ideas respecting the heavens, and the reckoning of his time, will be reversed, and the change not gradual, as in proceeding from the east to the west, or the contrary, but instantaneous. The magnetic needle will point to its unknown magnetic pole, or fly round from the point of the bowl from which it is suspended, and that which indicated north will be south; the east will become the west, and the hour of noon will be that of midnight.

THE THIEVES COUNTERSIGN.

The officers at Marlborough street establishment, a few nights back, were deputed to search the house of a known receiver in the parish of St. James, where some stolen property was suspected to be concealed, and accidentally came into possession of the following curious secret:

There is in London a quantity of little iron and rag shops where it is no uncommon thing to see a sign-board with the words "Bones bought here" painted on it, but until this occasion it was never known that those few words carried an entire different meaning with them. It seems, that in the slang Dictionary "to bone" means to steal any thing, and thus the plunder becomes "bonings." Wherever the thieves see the above sign-board they immediately make inquiries into its "general character," and when the proprietor is proved to be no "trap," he may be sure of plenty of custom.

The damage done in Sicily by the earthquake is estimated at 20,000,000 of dollars.

The first English ship from the Mediterranean to India, direct, in which private traders are wholly concerned, is returned in safety to Liverpool. She is the Gibraltar, of 600 tons.

The India Trade of Liverpool has increased so much that they proposed to build three India Warehouses, and a new Custom House.

A jury of England has lately given a verdict against Mr. Cole for thirty thousand dollars for a breach of a promise of marriage to a Miss Oxford. A new trial was afterwards moved, on ground that the damages awarded were excessive, higher than ever given before in such a case; but a new trial was refused.

A letter from Sierra Leone, dated Jan. 25, mentions that the expedition for the discovery of the interior of Africa, was then in the river Gambia, and was not likely to sail this season on account of the commencement of the rains. 40,000*l.* are supposed to have been expended on this expedition already.

PITTSBURGH.

Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh.

Emmons, one of the men concerned in robbing this Bank, having made a full disclosure of all the circumstances attending this nefarious transaction, a number of our most respectable citizens, among whom were some persons not interested in the stock, descended the Ohio on Tuesday night last, about 44 miles below Pittsburgh, to the spot where the notes and specie were concealed. After a search of a few minutes, in a very unfrequented, wild place, the notes of this bank, presumed to amount to $100,000 and about $1800 in silver were discovered concealed in some natural excavations, under some projecting rocks. The notes were much injured from damp, and the bag in which they were contained had become quite rotten, the silver remained in the same boxes, which contained it in the vault. On a full confession of the facts, it is established, that keys for the Bank and vault were made by taking the dimensions of the key holes by measurement. The keys of the vault were never in their possession, nor did they ever see them in the possession of any body. The money recovered is not yet counted, but it is believed that the full amount lost to the bank, will be something under three thousand dollars. The medal of the cashier is not found. A full statement will be made in a few days.

It is stated in the European papers, that it is probable that the Prince Regent is to be married to the Duchess of Parma, the wife of Napoleon Bonaparte. We hope, for the sake of legitimacy, that the report is unfounded. A king at the head of his government, as he is the fountain of the honour of his country, so ought he to be a model of moral and religious propriety. He ought not to expect to be allowed the slightest deviation from the strict line of virtuous conduct, more than is granted to his meanest subject. Maria Louisa is the wife of Napoleon.—That she was sacrificed to the French Emperor against her will, from notions of policy, there is no doubt; but still she was married in all the form and ceremony her religion prescribed. Neither she nor her husband committed any act which, either by their ecclesiastical or civil laws justified a divorce. Bonaparte was even not made a party to the divorce; of course, in England, she must be regarded still as a married woman. Now, as an act of this kind would be viewed in an infamous light by the moral part of the English community, if attempted by an individual, so ought an English Prince to be very cautious of doing an act which would tend, in the slightest degree to loosen those bonds which the ablest men of his country have always acknowledged to be indispensible both to form a virtuous society, & a stable government. The evil of a contrary doctrine has been strongly exemplified in the French revolution, the horrors of which may be in a great measure, imputed to the eradication of what were termed vulgar errors, by those worthy reformers, Voltaire, Rousseau, &c. As to the divorce of the Prince Regent, from his present princess it may be right. If the charges he brought against her are true, he would be justifiable. But if there is a political necessity for his getting married, there are certainly many unmarried princesses on the continent, without doing an act which might at all events be equivocal as to its morality. There have been no instances of infringements of duty, in this respect, since the days of that old lecher Henry the VIII; and with the exception of the libertine Charles II the domestic character of the English monarchs, has been exemplary. The father of the Prince Regent is considered as one of the most virtuous and moral men in Great Britain. It is to be feared, from the specimen we have had, that none of his sons will imitate him.

The restriction on the bank of England as to paying specie is to be continued for one year more.

It has been recently decided, by a jury in England, that real estate, purchased by an alien, who afterwards becomes bankrupt, does not pass to assignees under a commission of bankruptcy, but, by the general principle of law that a nation cannot hold real property, goes to the crown. This decision, however, cannot be considered as settling the point of law. To do that it must be carried before the King's Bench.—Bos. D. Adv.

Western Commerce.

A gentleman, passenger in the Etna, informs us that on his passage up, he numbered 9 Steam Boats, 57 Barges and 646 Flat Boats, bound down stream.—This includes the number seen during the run. He estimates that at least 100 more must have passed by different channels during the night. [Ken. Gaz.

Advices from New-Orleans of the 30th ult. state western produce to be on the decline, & from the quantity arriving and on hand, anticipate a decline from the quotations below. Freights, which had been low, had risen and were on the rise; the vessels then in port were deemed insufficient for the purpose of taking on the produce then offering for shipment.

Flour, fresh, 7 dolls. dull. Tobacco, prime, $7 50 to 8, dull and plenty.—Whiskey 45 a 50 cents, dull. Bacon, 10 a 11. Lard, 12 a 13. Pork, $16 a 17, plenty.—Louisville paper.

There exists in this union two perpetual sources of pollution to the morals of our country and of brutalization to the feelings of certain descriptions of our citizens—one is slave-holding—the other the condition of our Indians. As to the former, it would hardly be credited by those who do not know it that in the state of Maryland, not many miles from the metropolis, negroes, even females, are constantly kept with iron yokes about their necks—some few families being as ignominious for cruelty to the wretches as any driver in the Dutch West India colonies; and of the latter it may be said, that the condition of those who are within reach of our rapacious first settlers is truly pitiable. It is some consolation, however, to reflect that the executive of the United States, in whatever hands it has yet resided, has ever been the protector of the latter unfortunate race, as far as the laws gave them power to act, and that the wisdom, vigor and humanity of our present chief magistrate are likely to enable him to cope with the ferocious self-interested cunning and wily semi-barbarism of the disturbers and therefore, the enemies and haters of our red fellow citizens.—Alexan. Gaz.

Specie in Boston.—An Essay in the Boston Gazette expresses much alarm at the present great and increasing trade to India.—The author makes the following remark:

"I would venture to hazard an opinion, that there is not as much specie in the banks in Boston (exclusive of special deposits) as will be shipped from here to India in one month—and what is to prevent all this from going away, if dollars can any where be purchased with it?"

The house of Commons has refused to accede to the motion of Lord Castlereagh to increase the income of the British Princes and Princesses preparatory to their marriage. MILITARY STAFF.

In the new organization of the Staff of the Army, by the late law, and the arrangements of the War Department, as we understand them, the principal officer of each branch of the Military Service will be stationed at the Seat of Government; forming bureaus under the Secretary of War, so constituted as to give precision, energy and promptness to the army machinery. The want of such an organization at the beginning of, and during the late war, caused so many embarrassments, that no one can doubt the good policy of Congress in affording the means, and the judgement of the executive in employing them, to carry this arrangement into operation. The knowledge gained by experiments which cost millions, will be thus preserved, without increased expense, within the reach and control of the proper Department.

The bustle of business which is daily exhibited in this city, excites the admiration of every visitor, and to residents the utmost felicity is enjoyed, by the reflection, that their lot has been cast in a place where nothing is wanting but active industry, to insure a fortune. This envied metropolis will, ere long, take the lead of the most flourishing commercial cities of the old world.

It is mentioned in the Montreal papers, as a performance equalling if not surpassing the Brighton Ploughing Match that one James Bennet, of La Source, ploughed, sowed and harrowed in the seed, on twenty acres of land, in eight days and a quarter, with a two horse plow, and a single horse to harrow.—The operation was, to plough, then to sow and harrow in the seed with a third horse, while the plough horses fed.

YANKEE CURIOSITY.

From an Eastern paper.

A QUANDARY.—A sailor travelling in New England, fell in company with a man possessing a full share of Yankee curiosity, who, after many important questions, such as, where he came from, where he was travelling &c. observing his companion had lost an arm, inquired, "Pray, may I make bold to ask how you lost your arm?" "I'll tell you," says the other, "if you won't ask me another question." "Well, I won't says he. "Then 'twas bit off," says the sailor.—The honest Yankee was about as bad off now as he was before. He kept silence for a few minutes; but at length in an ague of impatient curiosity, but too mindful of his promise to ask the question direct, he burst forth with this ejaculation—"I wish I knew what bit it off!"

PITTSBURGH, June 1, 1818.

A general meeting of the Stockholders of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh, was held at the Court House, pursuant to public notice in the newspapers of this city.

JAMES ROSS, Esq. was chosen Chairman, and JOHN M. SNOWDEN, Secretary.

Mr. Scull, President of the Bank, made the following communication to the meeting, which, with the documents therein referred to, were read.

Gentlemen,

You have been assembled at the request of the Directors of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh, in order to lay before you the information obtained by them relating to the robbery of the bank. It has been thought proper to give it to you in writing.

On the night of the 6th of April last, the bank was robbed. This discovery was made the next day at the usual time of opening the bank, by the cashier. When he went to unlock the vault doors, he found them open, and the money taken. He immediately informed the President of what had happened, who convened the Directors.

A number of persons were forthwith dispatched through various parts of the country, and a boat with four men on board descended the Ohio, to give the alarm, in hopes of apprehending the robbers, and recovering the money. Handbills, circular letters, and publications in the newspapers, were sent to every place in the United States, where there was a possibility of the notes being put into circulation, cautioning the public against receiving them. The commission merchants and others in this city, were requested to inform their correspondents of the robbery, and solicit their aid in discovering the offenders.

From a great variety of corroborating circumstances, the suspicions of the directors, and of the citizens in general, were fixed on two men of the name of Pluymart and Emmons, who had been in this city for some time previous to the robbery of the bank, and whose characters and conduct were very equivocal and suspicious. It was ascertained that they had left the city a few days before the robbery, but returned that night and descended the Ohio with great haste about day light the next morning. A second boat was sent in pursuit of them with four persons on board; and they were apprehended some distance on this side Cincinnati, taken to that place, and confined in prison.

The persons in the first boat not being acquainted with the facts which had come to our knowledge (but which were communicated to the second boat) had overtaken Pluymart & Emmons near Wheeling. After examining them, & not finding money to any large amount—or any suspicious appearances, they were suffered to proceed on.

Mr. Montgomery, who apprehended Pluymart and Emmons, was very desirious to bring them immediately to this city, but he was prevented by the interference of some of the citizens of Incinnati, who objected to the re-delivery of the prisoners to him, until a requisition from the Governor of Pennsylvania to the Governor of Ohio could be obtained for that purpose. The prisoners taking advantage of this delay broke the jail, & Pluymart escaped; no information has been received of his being retaken. Emmons, who had his arm broken & was otherwise wounded in attempting to escape, is now safely lodged in the jail of this city, as is also Watson, who was apprehended here shortly after the robbery, and is believed to be concerned in it.

It is thought unnecessary to lay before the stockholders, the minutiæ of the evidence against Pluymart and Emmons, but it is confidently believed to be amply sufficient to convict them of the crime of which they are charged. As yet we have not been able to discover any trace of the money.

For the information of the stockholders the state of the bank on the day previous to the robbery; and also the state of the bank on the day after the robbery, as settled by Alexander Johnston, Esq. Cashier of the Bank of Pittsburgh, and John Thaw, Esq. principal book-keeper, in the office of Discount and Deposit, will be laid before them. The other books of the bank are too voluminous to remove, but they are open at the bank for the information of the stockholders, or any committee they may appoint.

The directors believe the above to comprise the most material facts, and have now only to ask the advice of the stockholders, as to the measures to be pursued in conducting the business of the bank

By order of the board of Directors.

JOHN SCULL, Prest.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

A BALLAD.

O sweetly blush'd the lovely rose,
And gave its odours to the air,
When waking from a slight repose,
Pale Mary left her couch of care.

In haste her bonnet green she took
With ribbon ti'd in true love knot,
And wander'd o'er the stream and brook,
Far from her mother's simple cot.

Blush'd not the rose with purer red
Than Mary's cheek e'er grief was nigh;
But ah! the blushing rose was fled,
And sorrow dim'd her azure eye.

Sweet maid she deem'd her Edward lost
In ocean's rude and angry roar,
Or by the whitening billows tost
Upon some wild and desert shore,

Then pensive o'er the heath she stray'd,
By early sol's reviving beam;
And oft the pale distracted maid
Returning, mark'd his latest gleam.

No news of Edward's fate appear'd
To cheer the damsel's constant gloom,
E'en hope's sweet solace disappear'd
And left no refuge but the tomb.

At length she fell to love a prey—
The rustics rear'd her lowly mound,
They mourn'd poor Mary's sad decay,
And wet with tears the hallow'd ground.

E'er three cold moons her Edward come
On love's light wings with throbbing breast;
His bosom own'd the gen'rous flame,
"The noblest passion and the best."

He heard the sad affecting tale
Which told his Mary's spirit fled—
He wander'd o'er the dewy vale
To pay a tribute to the dead.

"Cold, cold my love—in death's embrace
"The lovely form that won my heart,
"Food for the worm that lovely face
"Which every sweetness did impart.

"That azure eye must roll no more,
"No longer cast its glance divine;
"That gentle heart must beat no more
"Which beat, in unison with mine.

"Fond heart! no longer shalt thou beat
"Since Mary's breast is cold and dead;
"Fly from my bosom vital heat,
"And o'er her grave thy torrent shed."

He said and deep within his breast
The fatal ball unerring flew;
On Mary's grave he sunk to rest,
And bade the giddy world adieu.

The most VALUABLE PROPERTY on the West side of the Mountains offered

FOR SALE.

Plumpsock Iron Works.

WITH about 350 acres of land belonging thereto, will be offered for sale by public vendue, if not previously sold at private sale, on Tuesday, the 18th day of August next, at the Court House, in the the borough of Uniontown. This establishment consists of a forge, rolling mill, grist and saw mills. Also, a large brick dwelling house, furnished in a handsome style, with many other dwellings for the accommodation of workmen, and extensive stabling. It is situate in Favette county, state of Pennsylvania, in the midst of a highly cultivated country on the state road, nine miles east of Brownsville, on the Monongahela river, and the like distance of Connellsville on the Youghiogheny river, five miles northwest of Uniontown, and thirty nine from the city of Pittsburgh. Bar iron is made in this forge by rolling instead of hammering, of a superior quality. Stone coal is the only fuel used in making it, an inexhaustible pit of which is within one hundred yards of the forge. Three men with a horse and cart are sufficient to raise, coke and haul to the forge all the coal necessary for keeping the works in full operation. They are in good order, the machinery almost new. This property is perhaps the most valuable of its kind in the United States, and by suitable attention, it is believed, may be made the most profitable in its operations.

There will be sold also, at the same time and place, the following

HOUSES AND LOTS,

situate in the borough of Union, to wit:

1. The corner house and lot of ground situate on the north side of Elbow street, immediately east of the Court House, No. 20, being the most eligible as well as the most valuable lot of ground in town.

2. That large House and lot of ground No. 3 and part of the adjoining lot, on the west or the north side of Elbow street, in the occupancy of Cuthbert Wiggins as a tavern stand, fronting on said street about one hundred and thirteen feet.

Whole Tickets, halves and quarters, to be had of THOMAS JANUARY, who is the Chairman and Treasurer for the managers.

While the above Scheme presents a brilliant prospect to the purchasers of tickets of acquiring fortunes without incurring much risk, the object of the Lottery is such as to inspire the Managers with the most flattering hope that they will be enabled to announce, in a very few weeks, the commencement of the drawing. Every benevolent heart, whose sensibilities are alive to the sufferings of the poor, the sick and the infirm, and to the most efficient means of affording them permanent comfort and relief, will cordially unite with the Managers in the promotion of the speedy success of this Lottery. The completion of the Hospital Building, already in progress; and its preparation for the early reception of the suffering victims of misfortune and disease in the state at large, are objects which forcibly and will not in vain, appeal to the hearts and the heads of an intelligent and charitable community. The Managers confidently rely upon these considerations, and on the number of prizes compared with the blanks, rendering the chances of obtaining the former unusually great, for a very rapid sale of tickets,

PROPOSALS

FOR PUBLISHING IN CINCINNATI,

A New Weekly Paper.

The growing wealth and increasing population of the city of Cincinnati, and the thriving state of its commercial interests, have led the subscribers into a belief that an additional Weekly Newspaper would be liberally patronized by her citizens. At the suggestion, therefore, of several of their friends, they have some time since procured the requisite materials for such an establishment, and now solicit the attention of the inhabitants of the place, and those of the surrounding country, to a

PROSPECTUS OF THE INQUISITOR
AND
Cincinnati Advertiser:

Which it is proposed to publish as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers shall be obtained.

PREPARATORY to the issuing of a public journal, it has been usual with the editors to give an outline of their contemplated plan, and to make an avowal of such of their sentiments and opinions as should characterize their editorial labours.

At a former period, when party contention maintained an ascendency, it seemed a necessary condition that any person assuming the direction of a press, should attach himself to some political sect, and subscribe to its doctrines, whether they all had a foundation in truth or not. Happily, those days have passed away: party dissensions have nearly subsided: and the people have united together in supporting our invaluable republican institutions. Deriving a salutary influence from this spirit of conciliation, the editors are at once free to declare themselves AMERICANS in principle; and lovers of TRUTH—of LIBERTY—and of EQUAL RIGHTS, On these foundations they intend to erect the superstructure of the "Inquisitor."

A free press has been justly considered by all wise men, as the great bulwark of liberty: the sentiment cannot be too highly cherished in the breasts of freemen. Under a conviction, however, that this freedom should have certain bounds and limits, to render it salutary, the conductors of the Inquisitor shall ever be slow to enter into personal controversy, or to engage in violent or passionate discussions; because they consider that the welfare of the country will always be better consulted by a rational and deliberate examination of public affairs.

In a time of universal peace and tranquility, like the present, when little is passing abroad to arrest the attention, no subjects can be of more importance to the community than those which relate to our domestic concerns. A considerable portion of this paper, therefore, will be devoted to the dissemination of useful intelligence more immediately connected with the Agriculture—Manufactures—Commerce—& internal improvements of our country.

During the session of the national and state legislatures, it shall be their care to report, as far as practicable, the proceedings of these respective bodies; and they will also endeavour to preserve in their columns, such official documents as shall transpire from our general government, in her foreign relations. With regard to foreign news: when any occurrences of moment shall take place in Europe, it will frequently be in the power of the editors to gain authentic and early intelligence, through the medium o a direct correspondence with London. This advantage, with the aid of the most popular newspapers published in our large commercial cities, will ensure to the reader the utmost accuracy in this department.

Finally: it shall be a chief endeavour of the conductors of this paper to advance the cause of science—of the arts—of our native literature, and belleslettres; and to render their journal interesting and generally useful to the people of the West.

With this brief exposition of their scheme, the editors now submit their proposals to the public; resting on a hope that the undertaking will not be deemed unworthy of encouragement.

THOMAS PENNEY,
EDWARD B. COOKE.
